

Drug Offenses

Dennis Alan Lempert has extensive experience successfully defending drug cases by relentlessly challenging illegal searches, attacking misconduct by overzealous police officers, raising issues of technical defenses and errors committed by the investigators.

Where all else fails by conscientiously negotiating the best settlement possible.

Seeking placement with rehabilitation experts to overcome addiction problems.

Presenting defensible cases to juries to seek a finding of not guilty.

Proposition 36 and Drug Diversion are programs intended to avoid initially jailing non-violent drug users convicted of drug crimes involving personal use. However, jail is still possible in these types of personal use cases after multiple violations of terms and conditions of probation and in cases involving sales of drugs, possession for sale, and for a variety of other type of drug cases.

Serious drug cases can result in very harsh punishment and years in prison.

For persons who are not citizens, whether misdemeanors or felonies are considered justification for immigration authorities to deport drug offenders from the United States.

NEVER, NEVER, NEVER talk to the police without your experienced criminal defense lawyer being present.

ALWAYS insist that you want a lawyer before you say anything.

Never Allow Police to Search You, Your Car or Your House Unless They Have a Search Warrant
